Inclusive Sustainable Development: A Multidisciplinary and Interdisciplinary Approach-the Concept

Inclusive Sustainable Development refers to a holistic approach that promotes economic growth, social progress and environmental sustainability, ensuring that the benefits are shared equitably among all segments of society including marginalized groups.

SDG envisions a world without barriers, where all people—no matter their background, identity, age, disability or social status, shape their own development and that of their countries and societies (USAID,2014). Inclusivity promotes well-being and social cohesion with the theme "LEAVING NO ONE BEHIND".

The principle concept of sustainable inclusiveness aims to create a balanced and resilient holistic framework for the development of whole sections in the society with equity without any discrimination through Multidisciplinary and Interdisciplinary Approaches.

Rationale of the Conference

The International conference on Inclusive Sustainable Development is a paramount initiative to address the complex challenges faced by our community. In an era marked by rapid environmental changes, social disparities, psycho-social problems hindering the well-being and economic uncertainties, the conference serves as a crucial platform for discussing and fostering collaborative solutions.

The conference is instrumental in advancing the understanding of sustainable inclusive development.

The two day international conference on Inclusive Sustainable Development aims and stands as a catalyst for positive change, inspiring action oriented initiative that resonate across borders and contribute to the betterment globally.
